

Danger Man

Nigel Statham has left us for the best of reasons. By the time you read this, he will be driving across thousands of miles of desert, forest, mountain, bad roads and no roads. The Mongol Rally is a charity event with each of the 200 teams raising at least £1,000 for Mongolian charities as well as other worthy causes across the UK and Africa. M.D. Robin Mills, on behalf of Petchey Leisure, is pleased to sponsor Nigel, and we hope that other members will be able to do the same – the Rally is going to take quite a while so you are not too late. Nigel's team is Mongol Shoebox and the money they raise will go to the Cambridge Mongolian Disaster Appeal and Essex Air Ambulance. Have a look at Mongol Shoebox's website at www.mongolshoebox.co.uk and follow the links to his justgiving.com pages. You can also e-mail Nigel at info@mongolshoebox.co.uk. There is a separate link for each charity, so you can decide which one you would prefer to give to. Or, again through the website, you can help Nigel by donating to the Petrol Fund, the Food Fund or the "It's all gone wrong again" Fund!"

So, Mr. Statham. You had us all fooled. All that time, under your immaculate shirt-front, was actually beating the heart of Indiana Jones. Your ex-colleagues wish you all the luck in the world, and agree with the sentiments expressed on the website: "This is an unusual fundraising event. Some believe the world is far too full of health and safety regulations. We are attempting to break the mould." Go for it, Nigel.
